The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

THE GERMAN REPORT that the Russians have opened a major offensive on the southern Vistula front in Poland signals a momentous development—if true.

This anxiously awaited Red drive is calculated to provide the perfect complement to the Allied pressure on Nazi Marshal Von Rundstedt in the west. It will establish the big squeeze which shortly should give us a fair gauge of the enemy's remaining strength, and ultimately will crush the life out of him.

Into this picture fits, in a big way, the sensational news that Turkey is opening the Dardanelles for passage of Allied supplies to Russia. This is the quick feed-line to the Soviet Vistula front.

Uncle Sam's soldiers are suffering heavy casualties in the blood battle of the Belgian bulge—and the end isn't in sight. So great is the call for manpower in Europe, and in the Pacific theatre, that Washington is undocking a minimum of 600,000 men for the armed services in the first six months of 1945.

With this stark background, the publisher of a daily newspaper has asked me what substantiation there is for reports that, while our boys are being sacrificed, there are French and Belgian youths who also could be used, but are not. That's an unpleasant subject but one which should be ironed out, for the sake of all concerned.

To state my conclusions first, I find no support for such an idea. Both France and Belgium seem to be doing all they can to get their available men into action, and the Allies are rendering such assistance as they can. However, the situation is complicated and difficult.

Take the case of France. With a pre-war population of about 42,000,000 she might be expected under normal conditions to put a minimum of ten per cent under arms—say 4,000,000—apart from colonial troops. But actually the French government reports that the Germans are holding 780,000 French prisoners of war, 225,000 voluntary French workers, 750,000 French slaves, 600,000 deportees of military age, and 600,000 deportees from Alsace and Lorraine, mostly men. That's reaching for 3,000,000, or close to three-quarters of France's quota of fighting men.

France has been short of equipment for those troops she could raise, and hasn't even had sufficient arms for training.

Despite these handicaps, Gen. DeGaulle has flung an eager force into the flaming western battle front, and is reported planning to add 1,800,000 to the army, making a total of more than 2,000,000.

The story of little Belgium, with her pre-war population of some 5,000,000, is similar, though the Germans stripped the country. Belgium apparently had the idea of keeping France a prosperous vassal state, but Belgium didn't fare as well. The Nazis are said to have carried away much of Belgium's machinery. They even took away the wooden pit-props from the coal mines, so that mining has been given a body blow, and the country is suffering from lack of heat, electricity and transport.

While Germany is holding about 35,000 Belgians—war prisoners and slaves—Belgium has some 35,000 soldiers fighting on the western front, and others are training in England.

The fearsome face of "Mr. Propwash," English bulldog, didn't faze 3-year-old John (Pepper) Fusselman, who immediately became pals with the dog when it landed at Hamilton Field, Calif., with a bomber crew. Pepper is son of S/Sgt. Harry G. Fusselman, Army photographer.

Story For Home Front

Salem Soldier Lives Through 'Worst Day' On Western Front

While most Salemites sat comfortably around festive tables in cozy homes on Thanksgiving day, a Salem infantryman, fighting for his life against the Germans on the Western front, spent what he terms "the most miserable day of my whole life."

The soldier, Pvt. Warren W. Calvin, 30, of 1043 Buckeye ave., wrote a letter this week to his wife, Violet, graphically describing his battle experiences thanking God that he was spared. The uncensored letter follows:

"Enough time has passed now, I'm able to tell you what I did on Thanksgiving but not Christmas. Thanksgiving day was the most miserable day of my whole life, and yet I had everything to be thankful for. I wasn't scratched.

"We made our first attack that day. It had rained all night and continued to rain all day. I won't go into detail but the rain stuck our tanks and stopped our air support.

Legionnaires Plan Tri-County Session

Plans for a meeting of the third district county council of the American Legion at East Liverpool on Feb. 9 were discussed at Columbiana county council session in Lisbon Friday night.

Posts from Jefferson, Harrison and Columbiana counties will be represented.

Arrangements were made to continue the annual Americanism essay contest for school students. The subject this year will be "The Attitude of American Youth Toward Compulsory Military Training." Harry Lundgren of Columbiana is county chairman of the essay contest.

Films including war pictures, and travel movies were shown after the meeting.

Those from Salem attending were Commander Lee Hollinger, H. E. Zepnick, Charles Seckel, M. H. Critchfield, Verne Rich and Leroy Foust.

Wife Awarded Custody Of Dog In Divorce Case

LISBON, Jan. 13.—Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp awarded the custody of "Spunk" to Mrs. Julia Ward Friday in an uncontested divorce case.

"Spunk" a hapless little mongrel whose home was broken up when his master and mistress separated, court yesterday.

No alimony was awarded for the care of "Spunk" and Mrs. Ward will have to foot the food bill henceforth.

ALLIES REWIN 60 PERCENT OF LOST GROUND

First Army Nears Houffalize, Heart of Nazi Belgian Bulge

(By Associated Press)

PARIS, Jan. 13.—U. S. First army troops drove more than a mile through snow-bound forests today toward Houffalize, heart of the Germans' shrunken bulge into Belgium, while Third army forces on the south battled within five miles of that highway stronghold.

The First army vanguards sliced to within less than six miles of Houffalize, menacing the Germans' last escape road, and narrowing the waist of the enemy salient to less than 11 miles in the American nutcracker clamp.

Ousted from 100 square miles at the tip of the bloody salient, Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt had fallen back to within two to three miles of the Ourthe river. The new blows menaced any German hopes of holding a line through Houffalize east of the river.

By unofficial estimate, Von Rundstedt had lost the equivalent of 20 divisions—perhaps 200,000 men—in his breakthrough drive. But he had rescued the bulk of his far-reaching armor, in strength still constituting a striking threat.

Regin Much Ground

The tip of Von Rundstedt's drive had been bent back 23 to 25 miles from its nearest approach to the Meuse river, and American and British armies had won 60 per cent of German-occupied territory.

Soldiers of the First army showed 2,000 yards through forest lands south of Langer, seven miles above Houffalize, reaching to within three miles of the Houffalize-St. Vith highway. Germans fought back violently.

Without Houffalize, the Germans probably would have to pull back the way to St. Vith on the north, and Vlenden on the south, retreating again into the Siegfried outer defense zone.

First army patrols which stabbed east of the Salm river were within nine miles of St. Vith. The latest Third army punch up through northern Luxembourg was only six miles from Vlenden. At both these spots the Germans appeared to be putting up their stiffest resistance.

While Von Rundstedt had power to lash out again, it seemed likely such a thrust would be directed elsewhere than in the Ardennes bulge.

The Alsace plain was a potential foothold for such an offensive—but stiffened French-American defense there was holding the latest Nazi assaults to a virtual standstill.

Japs Claim 31 U. S. Ships Sunk At Luzon

(By Associated Press)

Japanese propagandists today claimed 31 American ships were sunk and 25 damaged off the Luzon island invasion area of the Philippines in five days, ending Jan. 10 (Tokyo time).

A recapitulation by the Japanese board of information, recorded by the Federal Communications commission, claimed as sunk 20 transports, three aircraft carriers, five cruisers, a battleship and two destroyers. The damaged list included at least four carriers, 13 transports, at least one battleship, two cruisers and five warships not definitely identified.

An additional claim, made by the Domei news agency, asserted a "second convoy" consisting of 50 transports and about 250 landing barges, is under attack and "up to the present 40 per cent has been sunk or damaged."

Tokyo radio added another unconfirmed assertion that Japanese submarines attacked "an enemy fleet comprising battleships and carriers and sank one battleship."

Union, Bliss Officials Hold Contract Meeting

Representatives of the E. W. Bliss Co. met yesterday at the Memorial building with the negotiating committee of Local 3372, United Steel Workers of America (CIO) to continue negotiations for a contract between the company and the union.

Representing the company were H. P. Smith and F. Crampton, personnel officers, L. W. Nash, D. G. Holt, A. R. Cutcliffe and M. A. York, officers of the local plant. Representing the union were William Steffel, A. F. DeWan, N. Kleon, D. Thompson, F. Wack, H. Brooks, K. Krauss, D. Weber, H. Dunlap and LeVern Halsey, field representative for the U. S. A.

Another meeting is scheduled for Friday, Jan. 26.

STRIKE ENDED AT CLEVELAND

Power Restored To War Plants After Army Takes Control

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, Jan. 13.—Union officials early today ordered 400 coal passer-employees of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., whose strike threatened to paralyze war production in this United Nations arsenal, to return to work, a few hours after the Army took over company properties.

Leonard E. Palmer, local president of the CIO Utility Workers Organizing committee, in a statement to union members told them of the Army action and declared:

"We therefore instruct all employees to return to their assigned jobs on their next regularly scheduled shift."

The seizure, ordered by President Roosevelt, dramatically interrupted a night-long conference between company, union and federal war agency officials called in an attempt to settle the dispute.

Five Army officers headed by Col. E. A. Lynn, Cleveland ordinance district chief, marched into the company's downtown office building at 4-30 a. m. and informed the conference of the executive order.

The directive was announced in Washington by Acting Secretary of War John J. McCloy, who said continuation of the strike would jeopardize plans of the Army and Navy for "further offensive operations," and endanger lives of soldiers overseas.

Declaring the strike is in violation of law and labor's no-strike pledge, McCloy's statement added "it exhibits a callous disregard of their obligations to their country on the part of the persons responsible."

Col. Lynn, in a statement, warned employees who did not report for work on their next regular shift would be discharged. He also declared that names of men holding occupational deferments who did not report would be referred to the state director of Selective Service for immediate reclassification.

The Army seizure, Lynn's statement said, "was necessitated by the strike of certain employees of this company which threatened to disrupt the entire power system of the city and to cripple the production of the city's vital war plants and paralyze the community's facilities, including hospitals."

FARMS NOT SAFE

Accidents Claimed Lives Of 78 Ohio Farmers In October and November

COLUMBUS, Jan. 13.—Seventy-eight Ohio farm persons were killed accidentally last October and November, making the record for two months one of the highest, W. E. Stuckey, farm safety specialist at Ohio State university, reported today.

Fatalities included 43 men, 17 women and 18 children. The youngest person accidentally killed was two months old and the eldest was 91 years. One accident took three lives, another two.

Twenty-one persons were killed by falls, which led fatal accidents on the farm. Fourteen were killed in automobile accidents and gunshot wounds took the lives of nine.

One Dead And Four Missing Is Latest Salem War Toll

One Salem man has been reported killed in action, his brother formerly listed as missing is now reported to be a prisoner of war in Germany, and four other soldiers are missing in action, according to War department messages.

Killed:

Pfc. George T. Spack, killed in action in France Nov. 24.

Prisoner of war:

Pfc. Eugene E. Spack, reported missing Sept. 29 in Germany.

Missing in action:

Pvt. John Girscht, missing in Germany since Dec. 17.

Pfc. Julius Sandusky, missing in Germany since Dec. 16.

Staff Sgt. James V. Burrell, missing in Germany since Dec. 21.

Pfc. George T. Spack, 24, who was killed while serving with the Fourth Armored division in France, and his brother, Pfc. Eugene E. Spack, 22, reported missing from the 39th Infantry last September are sons of Mrs. Elizabeth Spack, 1150 Newgarden st.

Pfc. George Spack attended Salem High school for two years and was employed by the National Sanitary Co. before his induction in November, 1941. He received training at Camp Croft, S. C., and went overseas from Camp Bowie, Tex., in December, 1943.

He was sent to England for a short time and then to France.

The Salem soldier was born here May 22, 1920, and spent his entire life in Salem. He has two other brothers in the armed forces: MM 3/C Michael Herman Spack, stationed with the Navy at San Diego, Calif., and Staff Sgt. Simon William Spack, serving with the Air Corps in Italy.

His mother and brothers survive. Pfc. Eugene Spack, graduated from Salem High school in 1940 and was employed by the E. W. Bliss Co. before entering the service April 23, 1943. Overseas three months.

He was stationed in England and then went to France, Belgium and Germany. He and his brother were in France at the same time but were unable to arrange a meeting.

Now a prisoner of the Nazis, Pfc. Spack was a member of the 39th Infantry division when reported missing. He trained at several camps in this country with the 88th Glider Infantry.

Pvt. John Girscht, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Girscht of 780 Liberty st., entered the Army in March, 1943 and was sent overseas last October. He was reported missing Dec. 21 after serving in England, France and Germany. A former employee of the Mullins company, he trained at Fort Jackson, S. C., and Camp Atterbury, Ind.

He has a brother, Staff Sgt. Fred Girscht serving with an anti-aircraft unit in Germany.

T/S Harvey J. Stockwell, 22, former Salem resident, whose wife Mrs. Frances Stockwell lives in Cleveland, is missing in Germany where he was serving with the 69th Infantry.

He was inducted into the service in December, 1942 and trained at Camp Van Dorn, Miss., Fort Bliss, Tex. and Camp Maxey, Tex. before going overseas in October, 1944. He was employed at the Ravenna Arsenal before entering the armed forces.

A brother of Mrs. Donald Tullis and Miss Betty Stockwell of Salem he has two brothers in the service: Alfred in the Merchant Marine and Corp. George, with the Army at Key West, Fla.

Pfc. Julius Sandusky, 28, a former Salem resident, whose wife Mrs. Frances Sandusky lives in Cleveland, is missing in Germany where he was serving with the 69th Infantry.

He was inducted into the service in December, 1942 and trained at Camp Van Dorn, Miss., Fort Bliss, Tex. and Camp Maxey, Tex. before going overseas in October, 1944. He was employed at the Ravenna Arsenal before entering the armed forces.

Yanks On Luzon Entering Enemy Concentration Zone

(By Associated Press)

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, LUZON, Jan. 13.—Sixth army invaders of Luzon, capturing two highway junctions 12 miles inland from their beachhead, advanced unchecked the third day of their tank-led drive toward Manila, but headquarters reported today forward elements were entering a "zone of enemy concentration."

Other evidences materialized that the Japanese might put up a fight for the northern part of the highly important central Luzon valley.

A big freighter-transport and 45 juggers were sunk or badly damaged as they tried to land supplies at San Fernando, about 45 miles north of the American Lingayen beachhead.

A Yank spearhead on the left flank of Gen. MacArthur's front called for air support to smash a strong enemy position on the Manaoag-Poorubio road.

The main U. S. force gained three more miles in the 24 hours to Thursday midnight, seizing San Carlos and Malasiqui at the deepest points of penetration, 12 miles from the coast.

San Carlos is the hub for three highways. Two cross at Malasiqui. From Malasiqui it is 90 airline miles to Manila, down a wide valley well suited for the tanks, pacing the Yank columns.

Japanese attempts to bring reinforcements north to meet the MacArthur forces were jolted again as American warplanes strafed and bombed airfields, motor columns and rail facilities. More than 200 vehicles and five tanks were destroyed in one attack.

Along the Manaoag-Poorubio road ground troops thought they had run into a strongly-defended position and called for air support. Navy Wildcats responded with a half-hour rocket barrage, after which the infantrymen found several abandoned pillboxes, two machine guns and five enemy dead.

One of the day's most spectacular events was the smashing of the enemy supply convoy at San Fernando.

Patrolling Navy planes sighted the enemy activity. Torpedo bombers were driven off by intense anti-aircraft fire. Five destroyers from the U. S. Seventh fleet steamed in and made short work of the enemy sea craft, then shelled the port area, destroying three large ammunition dumps.

American planes dominating the Luzon skies heavily bombed Grace Park airfield near Manila, destroying a number of parked aircraft.

NAVAL CLASH IN INDO-CHINA SEA RAGES ON

Halsey Strategy Upsets Japs' Plans To Reinforce Philippines

By LEIF ERICKSON

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 13.—A furious assault on four huge Japanese convoys massing along the French Indo-China coast roared on, according to latest Navy reports, with Third fleet planes pockmarking down more of the bombs, rockets and torpedoes which already have smashed 38 enemy ships.

A 5,000-ton cruiser, several destroyers and 12 transports loaded with troops intended to be thrown against Gen. Douglas MacArthur on Luzon in the Philippines were among 25 ships sunk Thursday, first day of the attack. Thirteen other ships were damaged.

Navy accounts to date report no damage to the American fleet.

Suggesting the vulnerability of the Asiatic mainland to invasion from the Pacific, Adm. William F. Halsey's fleet defied Japan's continental land-based air power by moving in close enough to send raiders inland. They set off big fires around the city of Saigon, 1,000 miles west of Manila.

Catches Japs Off Guard

It can now be disclosed that his battleships, cruisers, destroyers and aircraft carriers swept to the current action between Saigon and Camranh bay across the South China sea after sinking or damaging more than 100 Japanese ships and knocking out 68 enemy planes at Formosa last Monday. It is more than 1,000 miles from Formosa to Saigon.

The crucial Indo-China assaults, aimed at breaking up a big enemy effort to strike in behind MacArthur before the convoys can get under way, caught the Japanese by surprise.

That was attested by last night's communique pointing out that six loaded transports were sunk at Saigon and at least another six in the harbor of Qui-nhon, 250 miles to the northeast.

The fact a light cruiser was the biggest warship bagged indicates Japan is so hard hit that her admirals are forced to send a boy to a man's job.

Super Dreadnaught Sunk

Adm. Nimitz yesterday confirmed the sinking of Japan's 45,000-ton superbattleship, the Musashi. He said she "blew up and sank as the result of damage inflicted on her by aircraft attacks" last Oct. 24 during the second battle of the Philippine sea.

The Musashi and a sister ship, the Yamato, damaged in the same action, were the two most powerful battleships in the Japanese fleet.

New Jap Losses At A Glance

Here is the new Japanese naval and merchant fleet destruction at a glance:

Sunk—32 ships including 12 loaded transports and half a dozen warships; 18 small craft. Sunk or damaged—45 small freighters and coastal vessels. Damaged—54 ships, including six destroyers; 42 small craft. In addition, 68 Japanese planes were destroyed.

Better But Not Good

There seems no danger that Germany's retreat from the advanced part of the Belgian salient will start a fresh epidemic of over-optimism. The news from Europe is better, but not good.

It is the consensus of many cautious observers that the German offensive which started last month has tangled Allied strategy, which undoubtedly was the purpose behind it. Marshal von Rundstedt is an able field commander. He estimated his chances, took a deliberate risk and, accomplished his purpose. He will continue to do the same thing, to the extent of Germany's ability to supply sufficient weapons and men to carry out his strategy.

He has demonstrated something which will be elemental in the remainder of the campaign to invade Germany from the west—something he knew, but which was not generally known. The Allies do not possess overwhelming strength. Their capacity to defeat Germany is limited by many circumstances, including the major circumstance of United States commitments in the Pacific. It remains to be seen now whether another Axis military strategist, Yamashita, commander of Japanese troops in the Philippines, may be able to take similar advantage of the division of American power. Gen. MacArthur is receiving vast supplies, but not so vast as they would have been if Gen. Eisenhower's needs were not being satisfied simultaneously.

Axis grand strategy, which called for keeping the United States busy with threats from two sides, is still working. The Axis powers are no closer to staving off defeat than they were before von Rundstedt sprang his surprise, but neither are the Allies appreciably closer to gaining victory.

Playing It Safe

War Mobilization Director Byrnes, now chief spokesman for the "hard" school of wartime conduct which has gained the upper hand in official Washington, is up against a tough proposition.

He knows it. It's important that all of us should know it. We are the tough proposition—we and the skepticism that is the prime prerogative of life in a free country.

In effect, Mr. Byrnes proposes to teach old dogs new tricks, ranging from complications like a national service act to simple omissions of indulgences like going to races. He proposes to eliminate conventions and save coal by having us reduce house and building temperatures to a maximum of 68 degrees.

Everything he has proposed so far is probably typical of more changes to come. There has been a reversal of official attitudes. The same administration which thought the war could be won with minimum dislocation of the civilian economy now contends there must be drastic dislocation.

The question is whether the people will accept this new attitude at face value and comply quickly, or whether Mr. Byrnes will be blocked by skepticism. Farm groups doubt the necessity of drafting deferred farm workers. Organized labor doubts the necessity of a national service act, as do many individuals. The necessity of reducing maximum temperatures will not be easy to accept.

Yet, in wartime, skepticism amounts to challenging the conduct of the war. It can become a very serious matter. America can't afford to be wrong again. It has been wrong too many times already, as it was last fall when it decided the war in Europe was all over but a quick mop-up.

The only safe decision is to comply first and ask questions later. On such public decisions as a national service act, the country will have to trust the composite judgment of congress. All of us want to hasten victory now with every means the nation can command; we can argue about the way the means were employed at some safer time.

Mr. Byrnes and the "hard" school of wartime conduct are in control. They are calling, in effect, for a public vote of confidence not only in the government, but in the nation's ability to rally itself for the final great effort needed to achieve victory. Compared with this, the vote of confidence which was held formally last November on election day was a minor affair which merely decided that there would be no change of national administration. This one is going to decide whether the administration that was retained in office will be permitted to fight the war according to its convictions about what must be done to secure victory.

Old-Time Price Ceiling

It was rather surprising and most encouraging to learn that in a recent poll of automobile owners, 78 per cent of those questioned said they would not buy a new car if postwar prices were 25 or 30 per cent above the peacetime level.

After repeated predictions by economists and others, a lot of us had taken it for granted that the release of wartime savings would start a buying spree that would exceed healthy bounds and make price control necessary for a long time after the fighting had stopped.

Maybe those controls will still be necessary. In the automobile field, for example, the controls should exceed the supply for some time to come. And yet, if this poll is representative, it appears that already the average citizen is conscious that this wartime monetary honeymoon won't last forever, and is beginning to feel the twinges of thriftiness.

Anyway, it's good to hear again that old price ceiling order that went like this: "I'll be dog-goned if I'll pay it." It's the sort of order that businessmen have a way of complying with.

Hard To Please

President Roosevelt spoke glowing words of praise for France in his recent message to Congress. Yet General de Gaulle's biography has expressed bitter disappointment that the President did not mention the general by name.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey has been taken to task by Democratic leaders of the New York state legislature for proposing a legislative program that the Democrats themselves have been trying to put across.

Obviously the President would have disappointed General de Gaulle's biographer even more if he had failed to praise France. And Gov. Dewey would have been taken even more seriously to task if he had proposed a program contrary to Democratic inclinations.

In politics especially, it seems that one is damned if one does and damned if one doesn't.

The Stars Say

or Sunday, January 14

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds auguries of progressive and productive activity, particularly in religious, cultural, educational and professional lines, with many pleasant contacts and adventures of a social and sentimental character. Hospitality, entertainment and social gaiety are in sight, with personal popularity in affiliations with those in advanced position or influence.

Those whose birthday it is have a year ahead in which they may find benefit, advancement, preferment and solid cooperation from those in influential places, in both public or professional life. Cultivate these, and find enhanced prestige and social popularity, as well as hospitable and congenial associations, possibly in celebration of domestic or social occasions.

A child born on this day may be endowed with talent, personal attributes and charm, which should assure a successful, prosperous and happy life.

For Monday, January 15.

Monday's astrological forecast holds a precautionary note, in matters pertaining to health, work, property and all ambitious situations, where a constructive, static, or depressing state of affairs may obtain. With a concentrated study of affairs, and a marshaling of latent forces, crystallized and stubborn conditions may be productively manipulated. Alert, practical and careful handling of all affairs may break through stubborn barriers, even in personal contacts and relationships.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of limitations with stubborn obstacles or impediments which call for concerted marshaling of all the available resources, facts and faculties. At the same time health must be considered, with that of the family, and funds, position, and all interested safeguarded. Perhaps postponements or delays might be blessings in disguise.

A child born on this day may have certain talents and subtle abilities, be serious and earnest but may be overwhelmed by obligations or other impediments. An optimistic viewpoint and tokens of loving appreciation should greatly assist.

Chronic Bronchitis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
A WINTER cough—one that hangs on all through the cold and wet months—is almost invariably a continuation and exaggeration of a condition that exists the year round. Cold, dampness and sudden changes of temperature following going outside from inside always cause a reflex irritation of the mucous membranes of the bronchial tubes and of the nose. Even the most robust of us when stepping out the door on a brisk winter morning gives a preliminary snort and clearing of the throat, feels a little tightening of the chest.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The person with so-called chronic bronchitis naturally feels these influences even more and is hacking and coughing and spitting and generally miserable all winter.

In most cases this chronic bronchitis is an elderly person. In most cases too he or she is thin. The condition is one of long and very gradual onset. In most cases too if he has been lucky or wise enough to save up a little nest egg or has a business that son or son-in-law can run in the winter he will be found in Florida or California or New Mexico or Arizona this time of year. The roque courts of Los Angeles and Long Beach are thronged with fellow sufferers of this kind at this very moment.

Pitiful Condition
Very few doctors have ever given much attention or room to this group of rather pitiful old people. "Oh! you've got your winter cough again, eh, Uncle Ned? Well, here's a prescription for Syrup of Wild Cherry—fine cough medicine; take teaspoonful when ever you need it." And poor Uncle Ned who has swallowed oceans of Elixir of Terpene Hydrate, Ammonium chloride, Syrup of Wild Cherry, Syrup of Tolu, eucalyptus, licorice, turpentine and heaven knows what all out of the drug store goes away with his prescription, and a very low opinion of the medical profession, to get near the fire as soon as possible. I will tell you one other thing about him—he is the fellow in the office who doesn't like drafts.

I have studied a good many of these people and almost invariably I have found that they have had sinus trouble or a chronic infection of the nose for years—

The British Empire is the world's largest, comprising 13,353,952 square miles with a population of 500,775,000.

Mahoning Farmers Attending School

Seventy young farmers attended the first session of Mahoning county's 1945 farm management school at Dublin grange hall at Canfield Monday evening.

I. P. Blaser of the Ohio State university department of engineering showed moving pictures of labor saving equipment that is in use on some Ohio farms.

He said that by substituting labor devices and arranging the interior of buildings we can often save a lot of trouble and hard work. Many farmers have been able to get more work done easier by using home made devices and by planning their work more carefully.

The next meeting of the course will be at 8 p. m. Wednesday evening, Jan. 17, at the same place. R. D. Barden, Ohio State university agricultural engineer, will lead a discussion on "How to determine the amount and size of machinery that the farm enterprise can support profitably."

On Monday evening, Jan. 22, V. R. Wertz of Ohio State university will discuss "Prices, Demand and Outlook."

Monday afternoon, Jan. 29 at 1:30 E. A. Embree and Mr. Hoing of Federal Land bank of Louisville, Ky., will discuss "How to determine the value of the farm."

The last meeting of the course will be on Monday evening, Feb. 5 with C. F. Christian of Ohio State university discussing "The marketing of farm crops in this area."

WAR BONDS TODAY ARE JOB BONDS TOMORROW!

Today you're making good money! Dig down and BUY WAR BONDS!

For every three dollars you put into War Bonds now, you'll get back four dollars. You'll spend those four dollars for things you want. And as men get paid for making things you WANT they will have money to buy what you MAKE. Then you will get paid. You can keep the ball rolling.

Yes, that's how war dollars today go to work in peacetime making jobs for you and your neighbors. The more dollars you save now to spend later—the longer will be the peacetime payrolls and the fatter the peacetime pay envelopes.

Think it over! Sure it's tough to go without—especially now when you've got it to spend. But it's the one sure way—not only to win the war—but to win the things we want afterwards . . . the homes we want . . . the America we want.

ROMANTIC MASQUERADE

by MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

The hands of her watch pointed to exactly half-past twelve when she nosed the hired auto into the driveway, and stopped it in front of the three mail-boxes by the side of the road.

There was a light shining out from the kitchen window of the cottage, and Daphne all but prayed that it would be Steve who answered her knock.

Her white, tense face seemed to burn at him out of the mist of the night. For a moment he doubted his eyes. He had been working hard in his laboratory when the knock came; he was concentrating on an infinitesimal object under a bright light.

"Steve! It's me, Daphne!"

"Come in! Come in!" he beamed. In the light of the room she looked at him for a long moment without speaking, seeing his great earnestness, the new lines etched in his face—and something else, too, that troubled her.

"I had to come, Steve." As she spoke she opened her purse and took out the newspaper clippings, showing them to him. "This is the way you said it would be, isn't it?" Dr. Fenwick nodded slowly.

"It's just the way you said it would be. Seven people who were pronounced cured have died in two weeks!"

She went to him quickly, putting her hand on his arm. "Steve, there's something about you.... You aren't like yourself."

"Tired, I guess, but it's good to see you."

He was tired, yes; but it was something more, an air of defeat was manifest.

"What are you going to do about it?" asked Daphne.

Steve shrugged and spread his hands helplessly as she said gently, "Something has happened to you. Once you helped me. Now let me help you. You are different than you were when I went away. You were filled with hope and certainty then. You thought you had found your new serum formula. Now you act as if.... as if you weren't sure.... Is that it?"

Steve replied slowly, "In a way, I know it works on the animals, but that isn't enough. It has to be proved on men and women, like you and me. And that's what I can't do."

"But you can!" she cried. "Go to an epidemic area where they need you."

He shook his head. "That isn't the way it's done. First, there must be laboratory tests on volunteers."

"Then you must get volunteers."

"I tried," Steve said sadly. "Wired medical societies and asked for volunteers. The usual procedure."

"When?"

"Two weeks ago. Too late. At a time like this, I expect there are lots of real doctors and some crackpots too, asking for such volunteers. Besides, many of them think Calverton's stuff works."

"Steve," she asked, pulling off her gloves slowly. "How many volunteers do you need?"

"Two might do. Able-bodied men, that's all."

"What about Perry for one?"

Steve shook his head decisively. "I won't let him risk it. He's doing useful research work on his own. You see, Daphne, I don't know. I believe, but I don't know...."

"And talking about that now isn't going to help. You need rest. When will you sleep last night?"

"I don't suppose there's much to eat," Daphne said. "But I'll find something, and you're going to eat it, and take a nap, too."

She put out the bright lights in the room, smoothed a pillow on the couch, and said he was to rest there, adding, "I'll keep watch for you tonight. You tell me what you want done. I'm the Perfect Laboratory Assistant, remember?"

Daphne found some eggs, cocoa and milk, bread that wasn't too old to toast, and fixed a light supper for Steve. She sat with him while he ate it.

"I have lots of things to say to you later," he said, eating ravenously. "How's the boy?"

"Thriving! He's at a camp. He's lost two front teeth, learned to read, add and subtract, and he's never stopped missing his 'Uncle Steve.' Now our conversation for tonight is over. You have sleeping to do, and I'm going to work."

"I want you to know that I hope you'll be happy," Steve said sleepily. "Happy?" Her eyes widened.

"I get news about you. Round-trip. From Buff to Dawson, to me," he yawned.

Daphne remembered that letter she'd written to Buff saying she—Daphne—was going to marry Alan.

Well, this was no time to tell him that she was not engaged. She picked up the tray, and said,

Why The Home Front Must Tighten Up

Everything expended on the War Fronts means just that much less for the Home Front, and the promise of 1945 is that combat expenditures, some of which are pictured above, will reach hitherto unimagined totals. CASUALTIES: Running at the rate of 1,500,000 a year, are expected to increase as war's tempo speeds up. AMMUNITION: More than two tons of ammunition are fired every minute of every day at the Germans alone, with rate of fire increasing. TIRES: Life-span of tires in combat is often measured in minutes. As supply lines lengthen, tire requirements will increase. GASOLINE: Combat reverses, resulting in loss of gas dumps, like that in photo; ever-increasing mechanized strength and growing air forces, including such gas eaters as B-29s, the huge new B-32s and other giants will use gas in unprecedented quantities. MECHANIZED EQUIPMENT: Tanks, trucks, jeeps, ducks, tank destroyers, motorized artillery and other equipment are highly expendable, as photo of Germans advancing past burning U. S. half-track indicates. PLANES: As enemy's defenses tighten up, plane replacements will be increased.

Ohio Relief Rolls Hit 'Irreducible Minimum'

COLUMBUS, Jan. 13.—Ohio's poor relief bill dropped to the lowest figure in a dozen years during 1944, and Welfare department spokesmen declared today the "irreducible minimum" finally had been reached.

Reports to Director Frazier Reams estimated relief costs last year at $5,509,386, or $1,142,076 below the previous low of $6,651,462 in 1943, and almost 80 per cent under the $25,015,655 spent in 1939, the first year the department assumed supervision of relief.

Welfare department spokesmen said 1944 expenditures were the smallest since 1933 when relief statistics first were made available in the state.

Friendly German Saves Three Yanks On Patrol

WITH THE U. S. SEVENTH ARMY, Jan. 13.—Three doughboys out on patrol in a small Alsatian village are alive today because of a native who spoke German but sympathized with the United States. He hid the Yanks when 50 Germans surrounded the patrol.

The Americans were walking along when a voice called out from an alley:

"Kommen sie hier!"

Pfc. Clyde Sachs of Hazelton, Pa., understood that, and the trio high-tailed into the native's house. The other two Yanks were Pfc. Herbert Schlenker of Sewickley, Pa., and Sgt. Andrew Pochuyav of Steubenville, Ohio.

The friendly native hid them in a pitch black underground chamber and when he got out, Pochuyav said they had felt like rats in a trap while wondering whether they had been clever or stupid in trusting the native.

They had been clever. The three Yanks made their way back to American lines when darkness came.

GI'S IN BURMA SAVE $380,000 A MONTH

MYITKYINA, North Burma — Anybody who thinks the American soldier in the Burma-India theater is playing loose with his paycheck should take a look at the books in the Myitkyina postoffice — they show the GIs are sending home about $380,000 a month in money orders.

One day recently the total sale of money orders amounted to $33,616, according to Lt. Sentile A. Rommel, Hempstead, N. Y., Myitkyina postal officer. And, he pointed out, that's just one army postoffice.

Besides money, the American soldiers in Burma are sending home a lot of packages, Rommel said. The average day of outgoing mail is 48 sacks of parcels and 16 sacks of letters. An average day's sale of stamps to go on package amounts to about $2,200, he said.

Pfc. Thomas

Pfc. Mervin A. Thomas, holder of the Infantry Combat ribbon, has been slightly wounded in action with the Second Infantry division in Belgium.

His wife, Mary, and small son, Mervin, make their home on the Albany rd. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Thomas of the Benton rd. has been overseas nearly a year.

The War department today confirmed the fact that Second Lieut. Eugene W. McCready, son of Mrs. Anna M. McCready, 284 W. Fourth st., is a prisoner of war in Germany. Lieut. McCready was previously listed as missing in action.

Staff Sgt. Rex Hundertmark, wounded in action in France Nov. 18, has been returned to the United States for treatment. He will presumably be brought to a hospital nearer his home. The husband of Mrs. Mary Ruth Hundertmark, Jennings ave., and the son of Mrs. Mildred Hundertmark, W. State st., he suffered a wound to the right elbow while serving with the 314th Infantry.

Corp. and Mrs. Donald DeMers are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emory DeMers of Damascus. Corp. DeMers recently returned from duty in Africa and India with an ordnance division. When he reports at Atlantic City at the conclusion of a 21-day furlough, he will join the Air Forces.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. King of R. D. 2, Salem, have learned of the transfer of their grandson, Olin M. King, seaman second class, from Great Lakes, Ill., where he recently completed training, to the University of Wisconsin, where he will study radio. His new address is: Olin M. King 82 C, 950-04-14, NTS, U. Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Field of E. State st. have received a change of address for their two sons, as follows: Carl R. Field QM 3 C, U.S.S. Grady DE 445, care fleet post-office, San Francisco, Calif.; and Lloyd B. Field, S. I. C, ARM, 756-84-45, Naval Air Gunners school, Jacksonville, Fla.

The promotion of Michele Falvo, 23, to private first class has been announced by headquarters of the U. S. Troop Carrier Forces in the European theatre.

Pfc. Falvo, son of Joseph Falvo, Wilkinsburg, Pa., has been overseas since 1943 and was employed by the New Albany Coal Co. prior to entering the service.

WOMEN IN THE SERVICE

Elizabeth E. Yates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Yates of Damascus, was recently promoted from private first class to the grade of technician fifth class.

A business college student prior to joining the Women's Army Corps in February, 1943, Corp. Yates is assigned to Hq. USAFIME, in Cairo, Egypt.

RATIONING BOARD MEMBERS PRAISED

As wartime rationing enters its Price Administration took a look at the record, paid a glowing tribute to the volunteer members and workers at local War Price and Rationing boards, and made the gloomy forecast that there seems little hope for any early relaxation of rationing restrictions.

Boards in this Ohio OPA district serve nearly 3,000,000 people, 38,000 retail stores, 7,500 food stores. During the year price panel assistants made more than 44,000 visits to food stores in the monthly surveys.

All boards have at least five rationing panels, specializing in gasoline, food, fuel oil and stoves, shoes and rubber boots, and tires and automobiles. Each board has from one to five price panels, which specialize in food, restaurants, services, used cars, and miscellaneous commodities, including apparel. These panels meet at least once a week to process applications, hear complaints, and make adjustments.

Many board members have served since the beginning of rationing Jan. 8, 1942, and some have put in hundreds of hours, all without pay. A great many board members retired from business, spend full time at their rationing or price control jobs.

Certificates of award, service buttons, ribbons and doffer similar recognition have been presented from time to time to those having put in 100, 200, 300 or more hours.

FOR VICTORY—WHY 85 MILLION AMERICANS HAVE BOUGHT WAR BONDS

They didn't do it to get $4 for $3, any more than our fighting men are risking their lives for Service pay. They did it to save American lives, to save time—because they know that the quickest way to clean and final victory is to overwhelm the enemy with superior equipment—no matter what the cost. They did it for America—for Victory. AND THEY'LL KEEP ON BUYING BONDS TILL VICTORY IS WON. But that $4 you get back in 10 years for every $3 you put into War Bonds now is important, too—mighty important, both to you and to America. Because we must not only win the war but the peace. And to keep the wheels humming so that there will be jobs for all, we'll need money—all of us. Money for repairs, replacements, education, travel. Money we can draw on out of reserves—WAR BOND MONEY. So for Victory today—and prosperity tomorrow—KEEP BUYING BONDS, AND KEEP THE BONDS YOU BUY!

Salem Scores 7th Win By Out-Maneuvering Potters, 37-30

Contest Proves Matching Of Defenses Rather Than High-Scoring Offensives

There are two things that thrill a Salem fan to the utmost: One is to defeat Alliance and the other is to be victorious over East Liverpool. Salem's Quakers passed the number two assignment last night by downing a strong East Liverpool Potter quintet 37-30 in the high school gym before the largest crowd of the season.

Primarily a defensive game after Salem collected a 10 point lead, 14-4, at the end of the first period, the contest was highlighted by foul shooting more than anything else.

Officials Irwin Shoppell of Canton and Al Sebastian of Youngstown were calling the fouls thick and fast—20 against the Potters and 16 against Salem.

Salem stepped into an early lead on six straight foul throws and a field by Matt Schaeffer. It was 11-1 before the Potters got a field goal, just two minutes before the end of the first period. They didn't get another until seconds before the close of the half. At the half it was 22-13, Salem.

Unquestionably off on floor shots, both teams made an amazing number of fouls. Salem cashed in on 13 of 24 tries, while East Liverpool made good on 12 of 17.

Although both outfits are known for their high-scoring averages, the defenses took a night off and the offenses came to the front to decide the outcome.

The first quarter set the margin and from then on Coach Miller was content to allow his lads to slow the game down and equal the Potters' scoring. The largest margin was reached mid-way in the final, when Salem led 36-21.

Fouls were costly to the losers and they played havoc with the offense. Center Dick Horton had four personals against him by halftime, as did Salem's Jimmie Appedisaan. Both were confined to the bench for safe keeping for awhile and were dearly missed.

Two Quakers—Walt Brian and Schaeffer—split up the backboard assignments equally and turned in a superb job between them.

Both displayed exceptional defensive games. Their rebounding probably contributed more to the Salem victory than any other factor.

Schaeffer had a good night off his own board also, caging the high of 13 points. Brian was close behind with 12 markers. Francis Lanney dumped in eight and did some troublesome defensive work on his own. Handicapped somewhat by four personals against him early in the third period, Lanney was forced to ease up on Jim Harris, who then got loose for nine of his 13 points in the last two periods. Harris played the superior game for the Potters and sparked the futile spurt that came late in the last frame.

The Potters scored and then shifted to a man-to-man several times throughout the game. By working over and around the some the Quakers had little trouble and their work against the man-to-man was even more productive.

In spite of the shifting defense, the Salem club got through and underneath for 11 of their 12 field goals. The visitors connected from underneath eight times, and cashed in on long shots but once.

Playing without one starter—Ray Kelly—and with Appedisaan, second high point-getter, on the bench nearly half the fray, the Quakers were far from their top form.

Norm Smith, though a power on defense, didn't come through with the points from his forward spot. Red-hot in practice this week on the long ones, Smith was counted on for a few more than his one point. However, his light defensive performance probably saved as many points as he might have collected.

The victory is the seventh for Salem in eight games and the loss is the second for East Liverpool in six games. The two teams met again on Feb. 2 in East Liverpool. Salem plays Warren, another tough job, there next Saturday.

Dog's Vigil Saves 2 Dogs
MURPHYSBORO, Ill.—Murphysboro residents passed by an unknown white dog for three days before they discovered why he kept vigil at the foot of Fager hill. Becoming curious, they called police, who found he had been standing guard over two other dogs trapped in a storm sewer beneath him. When the captives were freed, their savior joined them and disappeared.

NATION'S COLLEGE SPORT LEADERS AT CONVENTION END

This Session May Be The Last For Duration. Big Wigs Are Told

BY HAROLD HARRISON

COLUMBUS, Jan. 13.—The National Athletic association, faced with the possibility this might be its last national convention until after the war, winds up its 39th annual session today with what appears to be a two-man contest for president.

Listed as leading candidates for the presidency were Wilbur Smith of Tulane university and James D. Lynch of Cornell university.

The National College Physical Education association elected Delbert Oberbauer of Ohio State university as president; R. W. Marsh of Amherst college, Vice president, and Glenn Howard of Ohio State as secretary-treasurer.

Prof. Philip O. Badger of New York university, current president of the NCAA, told the group this year's meeting barely was "getting under the wire" of a ban on such meetings.

He and representatives of the Army and Marines spared no words, as they described the value of competitive athletics in the war effort. The service speakers were Brig. Gen. William W. Welsh of the Army Air Forces and Col. E. E. (Swede) Larson of the Marines. Col. Larson, formerly head football coach at the U. S. Naval academy, is a veteran of Pacific war action.

Coach's Respected
The Football Coaches association, meeting at the same time, devoted most of their sessions yesterday to viewing movies of the major bowl games and talking about gridiron offenses.

The job of head coach at Cornell continued to feature the rumor department. Among those most prominently mentioned was Henry Franks, coach of Tulsa's Orange bowl champions. Another was Dr. Clarence W. Spears, formerly of Wisconsin and Toledo university and now at the University of Maryland.

Western Conference athletic directors were concerned with the appointment of a successor to Maj. John L. Griffith as commissioner of the Big Ten. Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, athletic director at Northwestern, said after a session yesterday that the league's athletic directors would meet at Chicago in a week or 10 days to name the commissioner.

Big Ten affairs now are being directed by a board consisting of Wilson, L. W. St. John of Ohio State and H. O. (Fritz) Crisler of Michigan.

QUAKER RESERVES DROP FOURTH 49-22
Salem's Reserves met a mite more than their match last night as they dropped their fourth game in eight, 49-22 to a tallish, accurate East Liverpool secondary squad in the preliminary contest at the High school.

Swamped 22-7 by halftime, the Quakers never recovered from the early Potter onslaught and found themselves slipping further in the third period. They spurted momentarily in the final but couldn't close the margin.

Tony Martinelli, a promising sophomore lad, dumped through nine to lead Salem while Bob Cain sparked the Potters with 15 SALEM G. F. T.

NAVAL CLASH

Reports of the fleet penetration to waters off Indo-China are remarkable for the light enemy land-based opposition listed.

A Nimitz communiqué covering Thursday's action said only 18 planes were airborne over Saigon. Carrier fighters shot down 10. Fifty enemy planes were found at Thanh Son Nhut, air base north of Saigon island. Eight were destroyed. A Japanese bomber was shot down off the coast.

At Camranh Cat-Lai near Saigon and at Qui-Nhon harbor 20 flying boats and seaplanes were wrecked.

The mainland raiders set many fires around Saigon, at the Thanh Son Nhut air base and at Port Nhabe.

Powerful as are the air punches falling along the Indo-China coast, they represent but a fraction of the Third fleet's punching ability as underlined by disclosures of the Formosa attacks Jan. 8.

Nimitz said last night fresh reports from Adm. Halsey, delayed by a required radio blackout to protect fleet movements, show at least 33 enemy ships were sunk at Formosa Monday. They included two destroyers or destroyer-escorts, an oiler, a big cargo ship, two medium cargo ships and 27 small craft.

Among more than 80 other ships damaged were a destroyer and five destroyer-escorts.

Thirty-seven Japanese planes were destroyed and 61 damaged.

$30,000 Fire Damages Old Cleveland School

CLEVELAND, Jan. 13.—Fire believed to be of incendiary origin early today gutted part of Clark school, a landmark of Cleveland's West Side for many years, causing damage estimated at $30,000 by Fire Chief James E. Granger.

Battalion Chief Charles E. Gibson said he believed the fire to be of incendiary origin because the fire apparently broke out on all floors simultaneously.

by Miss Gladys Oesch of Westville attended a luncheon Wednesday given by Mrs. Glenn Turner of Beloit for associated V. C. club members. Mrs. Rayburn will be hostess to the group Wednesday, Feb. 14.

Miss Sylvia Richards, teacher in the high school, is ill at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pyle.

Work was started October 4, 1944.

Well Proves Failure

SALISBURY, Md., Jan. 13.—The exploratory well of the Ohio Oil Co., which leased approximately 275,000 acres of Maryland's eastern shore, has been abandoned after striking bedrock at 5,568 feet. Company geologist Stanley White announced today.

The geologist said the drilling, described at the outset by the Ohio Oil Co. as a wildcat venture, cost approximately $250,000.

Work was started October 4, 1944.
